NEW ON Z8DIGITAL.COM

Don't read about Zucoins. Send one.

Hi Robert,

We have rebuilt the Z8 Digital home page around something you can do, not just read. Two Zucoin wallets sit side by side, on two phones, and you run both. Send some Zucoin from yours, then accept it as Mia. Yellow arrows show you exactly where to tap.

It takes about ten seconds, it uses the real wallet screens, and nothing real moves. Here is the whole thing, start to finish:

Send, Sale price, Send amount, Confirm. Mia taps the notification, checks it, says yes. Done.

THE CLOCK IS ON

0.46 s

Can you beat our time? A big clock starts the moment Mia taps "Yes, this is correct" and stops at Transfer done.

Send your Zucoin now →

The clock times our simulation. On the real network, a transfer settles in under a second when both wallets and the network are ready.

Then add thousands of people

Further down the page, drag one slider from a handful of wallets to 5,000 and watch SplitChain handle every transfer on its own, side by side. No blocks, no miners, no queue. Each step is shown as it really happens, and the caching nodes never contact a wallet: the wallets always go to them.

Three ways to use it

Practise before the real thing.
The screens follow your Zucoin wallet, step for step. Try a transfer, let one expire, or send at a custom price, with nothing at stake.

Show someone what Zucoins is.
Family or friends keep asking? Ten seconds on two phones explains more than ten minutes of talking.

See the technology for yourself.
Two signatures on every transfer, no network fee, no miners, and a Zucoin that divides to 32 decimal places.

Pass it on

Know someone who keeps asking what a Zucoin is? It works for anyone, on any phone or computer, with no wallet and no sign-up. Send it to them in one tap:

WhatsApp | Email | Facebook

Or just send them the address: z8digital.com

If you want further information, contact Z8 Digital and we can talk it through from there. And if a friend tries it and wants to know more, the same goes for them.
